GANDERBONE'S FORECAST

been the grocer for all the greeting that he got from that admiring chorus, the which desire, of course, was not a bit like Theodore.

But however, when he died the month that loves to grill us was being written far and wide the season of Sextilis. They wanted to commemorate the hot time he presented the nation with, at any rate, so August was invented.

The dog days will resume again. And the man who voted water With the weather down to eight or ten Below will grow the better. With wishing that he had foreseen The season hot and steaming. And nothing but a choice between Pink lemonade and bluing.

It somehow makes it seem that booze is only fit for motors, and in the scuffle that ensues not very many voters bethink them that a chance remains that milk won't give them gristle to last when August boils their brains and their ears begin to whistle.

A crafty temperance is that contriving its elections when Boreas is at the lat in these disputing sections. There is a time for everything to lay and to potter, and one to sit way back and sing inaudibly for water.

At any rate, the world will spin With very small pretension. And the Fall elections will begin

To clamor for attention. The next few weeks will fire the gun. Repeatedly and offily. And a lot of folks begin to run For office very softly.

The bold insurgent will have pulled the principal chautauquas, and will by that time have been told how far direct his balk was, or if to follow his attack with further demonstration, or quietly to tip-toe back upon the reservation.

The hopeful Democrat will hope to have us as a rule have none of their explaining. He'll carefully trim up his wicks and get his pump pulsating, and pass the grandstand every six or seven seconds waiting.

There'll be some dust put up, it seems, when this event gets going, and some things starting at the seams that would proper sewing. No wonder Roosevelt came back, and nowadays his gun is rusting in the shooting rack, when here is where the fun is.

The time of green and growing things will near its termination, and the song the thrasher sweetly sings will come with moderation. We'll sort of think of autumn time, the hunter and the nuttier, and the fishing hold will wear a slime as thick as apple butter.

And then September will return In good autumnal fashion. And the poet fall upon his harp In something of a passion.

Born, to James Seagriff and wife, on the 20th inst., a boy. James says he will soon be able to watch the boys do the work.

Mrs. Amanda Brune is reported very much better at this writing.

Mrs. Joseph Gibson, who has been confined to her bed for the past two weeks, is improving slowly.

Joseph Rutledge was a St. Marys visitor one day last week.

Jacob Shawler was an over-Sunday visitor at Lima, the guest of his brother Frank.

Some of our citizens are in the habit of visiting Celina from three to four times a week, filling up on bug juice, returning at the break of day. We wonder why it is that a city like Celina is always the door of the dream shop, to be open all night, sending men home to their families in such condition. Its disgusting.

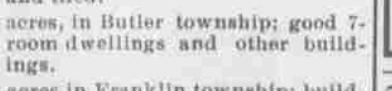

Mack Fisher and wife and Eli Eicher visited Francis Good and family Sunday.

Rev. Harvey and family and Gus Eichenauer were the Sunday guests of Joseph Rutledge.

PHILOTHEA

Joy over the arrival of a little daughter was suddenly changed into agonizing grief when Emma, the young and loving wife of John Dues, died after a few days' illness July 21.

Deceased was the eldest daughter of Wm. Evers and wife of Wendell, where she was born 25 years ago. On October 30, 1907, she was married to John Dues, and two children came to bless their home.

She was always an obedient daughter, a true and devoted wife, and her memory will always be cherished by all who knew her.

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. U. Mueller at Philothea Saturday and was attended by a large number of relatives and friends, after which the lifeless form, clad in her bridal robes, was laid to rest. The grief-stricken ones have the heartfelt sympathy of all in this, their sad affliction.

The Philothea Stars defeated Carthage at the latter place Sunday, score 10 to 8.
